INVESTIGATION INVESTIGATED. The strong suits of the ex Confederate House are investigation and economy. And yet the two do not seem to go well together. as a short inquiry into the cost of the investigations will show. In the first place it is proper to state that over thirty investigations have been ordered. Nearly every committee before which evidence is taken must have a clerk and a stenographer. Thirty clerks and thirty stenographers cost twelve or fifteen thousand dollars per month, or about $75,000 for the session. Witnesses have been summoned from the most remote sections of the country-from California, Oregon, New Mexico and other Territories, and they have been summoned in swarms. They are coming to the Capital in untold numbers, and in appearance like the lean kine of Pharach's vision. Each witness must be paid his mileage and per diem. The mileage is ten cents per mile, coming and returning, and the average paid to each witness will not be less than $200. Then the per diem during attendance will not fall below an average of $100 to each, thus making a total of not less than $300 to each witness. As there will not be less than one thousand witnesses here, even the average Democratic politician can by multiplying the above Seures discover that the witness fees of this Congress will amount up to not less than $300,000. The next item in the bill is for deputy sergeants-at-arms. Numbers of these have been traveling over the country, drawing salaries and with expenses paid by the Covernment. At least $50,000 will be expended in this way. The testimony taken before the committees will have to be printed, though most of it is utterly irrelevant and worthless, and the printing will not cest less than $250,000.

This enables us to sum up $675,000 in money paid and to be paid out during the aession for investigations.

But this is only a small part of the cost to the country. Over thirty investigating committees in full blast require the attention of at least one hundred and fifty members of the House. As the Democrats hope to make political capital out of these investigations, they neglect all other business and attend only to investigations. At least four tifths of the time Congress has been in session has been taken up by investigations. One hundred and seven days have passed since Congress met. Four-fifths of this would be eighty five days; and, as the average cost per day of Congress during the session is $12,000, we have another little item of $1,020,000 to be charged to investigations, without allowing for the time yet to be expended at $12,000 per day. And this is but a small item in the cost. It is well known that the business interests of the country are in a depressed condition. Various causes had contributed to this effect, one very prominent one being thefact that the Democratic party had obtained possession of the House of Representatives. and no one knew, or could conjecture, the policy it would pursue, and how that policy would affect our material interests. Nearly four months have passed away since Congress atsembled, and to-day no one is any the wiser as to what the majority intend All that has been done, except "to investigate," their quarrels upon the finance question, their endeavor to exalt the Anderson ville butchers; their assertions of the doc trine of secession; their open and unconcealed hostility to the Union, and their determination not to accept the decisions of the war, have tended to render the public mind more unsettled-to depress all the business interests of the country. But for the determination to manufacture, if possible, political capital out of investigations, the majority would long ago have indicated its policy, and the business men of the country could have trimmed their sails to eatch the coming breeze. In short, the country is in such a condition of chronic uncertainty that business men af all classes keep themselves and their business in such condition as to experience the least possible damage from legislation.

Important bills affecting the material interests of the country, measures fraught with great good, are allowed to sleep quietly in the committee rooms, because the members of these committees are so much employed in investigating that other business cannot be attended to. The Senate is left without anything to do, because the House has done nothing, and all the wheels of legislation are clogged by investigations. The cost to the material interests of the country of these delays and investigations, all of which, in the end, must come from the toil of the producing classes, has not been less than $50,000,000. How much more it will be time alone can tell.

And the result, what of that? One Republican official has been proven guilty of taking bribes. He took no dollar of Goverament money, but corruptly used his office to obtain money from others. He has been compelled "to step down and

The question is, will the country justify the Democrats in their lavish expenditures for this purpose: The object is well known. They are the merest self seekers the world ever saw. No Democratic House ever investigated Democratic thieves, nor never will. This wholesale expenditure of public money is simply an effort to make political capital, and will prove a miserable failure.

STATE OF VERMONT AND THE DISTRICT

Senator Morrill, of Vermont, as the chairman of the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, and Mr. Liendee. of Vermont, as a member of the House Committee on the District of Columbia, have fairly won the regard and confidence of the people of this District. Through her able representatives on the same committees in Jormer Congresses Vermont has exercised a powerful influence in behalf of the best interests of our people. The composition of the present House Committee on this District includes representatives from two New England States, Vermont and Connecticut ; six Western States, Okio, Wisconsin, Itlineis, Iowa, Michigan and Kansas, and three Southern States, Missouri, Georgia and Maryland. The people of the United States, in many important ways, are directly interested in the affairs of this District, and they may truly congratulate themselves upon the fact that they are wisely and discreetly represented by their committee. It seems to be one singularly free from partisan prejudice and very harmonious in its deliberations, and its measures are brought forward in the House, as a rule, with its consolidated strength; and we have noted with pleasure that the long service and experience of

has made him with it, and in the House, exceedingly popular and influentia). Me. Neal is also noted for excellent service. Refer, for instance, to the important work of last Monday. Governor Hendee reported two railroad bills, the Columbia and the Citizens', which were passed; he also reported a bill to regulate the duties of constables and marshals where property is claimed to be exempt from execution, a much-needed measure. In susporting these measures Governor Hendee was clear, emphatic and squarely to the point. Mr. Neal reported a bill for building the Corcoran square market. After fully stating the provisions of the bill, Mr. Randall obtained the floor and offered a substitute, the object of which was to defeat the bill. Governor Hendee's answer to Mr. Randall was complete and cogent, and so effective MORNING PAPER IN THE DISTRICT OF COas to command the attention of the House. The substitute was defeated and the bill passed. The fact that he faithfully attends every meeting of the committee; and at regular hours privately hears the views of citizens, accounts for his readiness, knowledge and power in debate. But this is by no means all. Vermont is ably represented by Mr. Hendee on all questions affecting the interests of the Republican party. He is never off his guard, and his votes are uniformly recorded as every true and decided friend of Republican principles would wish to see them. In him the State of

WAS THIS CONTEMPT? Has not Mr. Kilbourn been illegally and wantonly depriced of the sacred rights guaranteed to every American citizen by the Constitation? The following extracts from his testimony before the investigating committee speak for themselves: Q. You are the same Hallet Kilbourn snoker

Vermont has a representative who com-of and who testified before a joint committee at the last cession of Congress: A. Yes, str. Q. State whether you have in your possession now and have brought to the committee room the papers, documents, memoranda, &c., referred to in the subporta duces fecum served upon your A. I have not

Q. State whether you are prepared to produce them at this sitting of the committee. A. I am not prepared to produce them to-day. Q. State whether you are willing to produce them now or at any future citting of this committer" A. As at present advised, I am not pre-

Q. You refuse to produce them before the committee in response to this subposes . A. Yes, sir. I would like to state the reasons therefor, my per sonal reasons. My partner and myself are in a private business. We have no connection with the Government of the United States, and never have had; are conscious of having violated no law; are not charged with any fraud. Cur business that we do is done with private citizens through out the country, and I stand upon the right which I think belongs to every private citizen not accused of violating any law of being protected in his papers. Whatever the law decides, however, I am willing to abide by. I sustain but one relation to the Government, and that is to pay taxes and obey the law. That is the only I have with the Government at all. and obey the law. That is the only transaction

By Mr. Smith: Do you refuse to answer because you think such answer would criminate you? A. O, not at all, sir; not at all. If anybody will make an oath, an affirmation, or affidavit that in anything in connection with this we have violated any law, or committed any fraud, we will give you our books, give the whole history of our firm from the day of our baptism until the present

O. How much was thus put into your hands or the firm of which you were a member ? A. Of course, I have held the right to decline to answer that, and I will not hesitate now to do so. I will detail all the history of this pool to that extent. Five gentlemen each put in $5,000, and Jay Cooke & Cc. put in $25,000. Now you have the whole By the Chairman: That was the entire sum at any time put in . A. There was an assessment made after Jay Cooke & Co. falled of $2,000 each to meet payments. Jay Cooke & Co. did not pay this, and these other parties paid $2,000 aplece. I may say now that is the whole of it. Out of this great, big, world-wide, noised-abroad pool that is the whole sum of money that was ever put

Q. State by what members of the pool you were supplied with money to be invested therein, other than Jay Cooke & Co. : A. The money was sup plied by five gentlemen who comprised the other members of the pool aside from Jay Cooke & Co. O. And, as already stated, you decline to give their names? A. Yes, sir. I will state this: It it can be shown in any way that the Government is interested or that it will promote the interests of the Government in any way to the extent of one dollar, I will tell everything about it. I will tell everything about it if the Government has been wronged in any shape or manner.

I want you to understand that I do not resist it because I want to shield anything from the Government interests. I am only resisting it and protecting my own interests as a citizen who has but one relation to the Government, and that is to obey the law and pay taxes. The Government has no interest, one way or the other, in this mat-ter. If it had, through Jay Cooke, or Lowis, trustee of Jay Cooke & Co., it was all settled. We have settled through the courts. If the set-tlement was not fair, the court is open for it, I understand. Instead or resisting anything that affects the Government, as I said, I would belo to promote the Government's interests, if it can be shown wherein I can do it. Mr. Black, counsel for the witness, said that he wanted a record made up, which would justify one party or the other in doing what they re-to put some questions to the witness. on your oath, whether there is anything in the nature or history of this real-estate pool connected with any public affair, or whether it is purely a private matter. A. it is purely a private matter, and has no relation in the remotest degree to any spectively intended to do. He wished, therefore, public interest whatsoever.

Q. Was it, or not, a private partnership: A It was entirely so. Q. Relating to private business? A. Yes. Q. Was there any public money invested in it by anybody: A. Not a dollar. Q. Is it connected in any way with the public act of any officer of the District of Columbia or the United States Government? A. Not in the remotest degree. Jay Cooke & Co. put in $25,000. Q. Are they in it now? A. No, sir; nobody is interested in it now but Kilbourn & Latta. Q. Have you ever objected to a revelation of that business on any other ground than that it is a mere private transaction. A. That is the only reason why I have ever objected to answering questions about it, that it is a purely private

Mr. Black, That is all I want to ask the witness. But I want to go a little further and have this record put into shape so that it will bear the test of the scrutiny of any other tribunal before which it may hereafter be brought. To that end I call the attention of the committee to a fact which occurred before the committee at a former meeting, namely, a call upon the party who was promoting this investigation for any contradiction of the statement which the witness has just made, rogatories that the committee may put to him concerning the nature and history of the real estate pool, so called, provided that any gentleman here, or any member of the committee, will express his conviction, grounded on any fact known to him, that there if any connection whatever with any public act that Congress has a right to investigate or to found any legislation upon. If that be so, then there is an end of all controversy; the witness "comes down" immadistely and gives the committee any information that may be wanted on the subject. Otherwise it must be taken for granted that the nature and character of that transaction is what he described it to be on his oath, a purely private matter

SLOTE IN POLICICS. The play which is now drawing crowded houses at the National Theatre is, like most of the character plays of the day, crude in its conception and unartistic in its execution. Its plot is thin and weak. Its incidents are improbable and its situations unimpressive. It is east wholly in monologue and dialogue, and the dialogue drags at times sadly, like the conversation at an old-fashioned family dinner; but the play not only draws intelligent and appreciative audiences, but sends them home in a state of exhibaration and delight. It had the exceptional success of one hundred nights in New York, and has grown steadily in public appreciation wherever it has been since presented, until the character of Slote now takes rank in the histrionic roster with Dundreary, Solon

Shingle and Rip Van Winkle. Doubtless the greater part of its popu larity is due to the dramatic ability and artistic treatment of the Plorences, but there is more to the play than merely the acting Mr. Hendee as a member of this committee | of these children of M mus. It would not have taken its place so quickly, and yet so firmly; it would not have made the sensation it has made, if it had not been based on a semblance of verity, represented in the character of the Hon. Bardwell Slote, the member from Cohosh. The public could not ask for a more faithful mirror to be held up to nature than the one which reflects the lineaments of our typical country Congressman. His gray chin beard and red face, his everlasting broad-cloth, his ignorance, his shrewdness his ambitions and his deep consciousness-all these are set before us true to the life in every line, and we recognized an old friend at first sight.

When Mrs. Gen. Gilflory, the pretty iutriguing widow, who has been abroad, questions him as to his acquaintance with the "Moor of Venice." he tells her that he don't remember the man. "There was a Moore in the Forty-second Congress, but we called him Moore, of Michigan." There was a Slote in the Forty-second Congress-in fact there was a good many of him-and the Cohesh district has increased in representation since then. We have seen Slote in both Houses: we know him in Legislatures: he is not above running for the City Council: he delights to serve on committees; he is always a delegate at the conventions, and he generally drafts the platform. In fact, the platform is his stronghold-with a clerk to correct the spelling. There must have been a Slote in the greenback convention at Hartford. There are several Slotes slopping around the Tariff Pool in the lobbies of Congress, and the political philosophy of Slote finds simple expression in the XX statesmen of the Robbins' school and the double-distilled Democracy of the Fortyfourth House. In fact, it is hard to turn a point in politics without coming across Slote. It will not do to make a jest of his artless device of engaging a band and an enthusiastic populace to serenade him on the passage of his railroad bill within a month after the Labor Reformers in Wash ington have serenaded Peter Cooper, and offered him the Presidency.

In fact, when we come to look at Slote, to study his development and to examine into his ramifications amid our complicated politics, we will not wonder so much at the universal popularity of the portrait as at the fact that we have waited so long to have it painted. It must be admitted that the Slote in real life is getting to be what the charming Widow Gilflory would call tropprenence, or what the Hon. Bardwell Slote would call U. M .-- unpleasantly multitudinous-and we have latterly been casting about for means to get rid of him. It may have been within the designs of Providence that we may be able, by showing him up on the mimic stage, to laugh him out of existence: and if this happy expedient shall succeed it will be only a stronger reason for bestowing our admiration and applause upon the Hon. Bardwell Slote, who appears in the "Mighty Dollar." If the body politic should not gain. at least, then, Mr. Florence has created and given to the stage a new character.

WHEN anything unusual occurs, and man, the only reasoning animal, desires to account for it, he generally argues from cause to effect. Now that Mrs. Marsh has returned, suppose we carefully examine why she went. Marsh, hurried away by Clymer, left here on Thursday. The next day Clymer was told by a member of his committee that Mrs. Marsh was a needed witness, and should be summoned, and that certain papers in the Treasury Department should be examined. Sub-Detective Gibson, of the Sun, was told to examine the 'papers, and it was to be supposed that Clymer had summoned the witess. Friday and Saturday passed, but neither was done. Monday morning came, and again Clymer was reminded of the necessity of summoning Mrs. Marsh. Had he wanted her, a telegram sent to New York would have secured her, but, instead of sending this telegram, the weeper waited until night, and then sent a man to New York with the summons. He could not arrive and serve the document until Tuesday. But on Monday evening Mrs. Marsh left New York for Canada. Is she possessed of the second sight and permitted to see what is going to happen? or is it not more reasonable to suppose that she received a telegram from Washington, saying: "A summons goes for you to night; you had better 'dust'?" It seems to us this is the more reasonable proposition and the next question is to find who signed that telegram. If Mr. Bass or Mr. Danford had had the power to send a summons for Mrs. Marsh it would probably have been sent on Saturday. But the power to send a summons rests only with the chairman of the committee. He alone can have a witness subpornaed. Mr. Clymer and the Sergeant at-Arms were the only men who could tell that a subrona would leave here on Monday evening for Mrs. Marsh at New York. The deduction is irresistible that the dispatch was sent, and the suggestion is involuntary that it was inspired by HIESTER

WE ARE GLAD to welcome a disposition which is being shown in this Centennial year to provide for the completion of the Washington Monument and to rescue from decay Washington's home and burial place-Mount Vernon. Both of these are enterprises which entist the sympathies of every one who can, in the stirring events of our times, still revert to the fact of our humble origin and appreciate the debt of gratitude we owe as a nation and individually to the efforts of the great patriot. It would be a disgrace, indeed, if the hundredth year of our liberty should pass by without an exertion to finish the work which has been begun to immortalize the virtues of Washington by erection of a monument suitable to his memory. Few countries would have allowed the offering to remain so long unfinished. Let it not be said of us that it is entirely neglected that this is purely a private affair: and I now repeat (representing the witness, and as his counsel) his entire willingness to answer any intermediate by the association having the matter and forgotten. The effort which is being Ready-Made Goods in charge to raise funds by an entertainment to be given in this city on March 29 meets with our hearty support. It is understood that it will aim to revive the patriotism of former days, and the fact that the distinguished patriot, Robert G. Winthrop, Speaker of the House of Representatives in 1848, and who delivered the address on laving the corner-stone of the monument, will be present, and will probably address the assemblage, should alone call out a crowd. The other attractions to be farnished are noted in our local

WITHOUT the labor of the negro the South would become a barren waste in less than a decade. Her material prosperity depends upon the muscle of that much-despised race, yet Democratic politicians of the Tucker and Hill stripe, who were reared and educated upon the ill requited labor of the slave, are now their worst encmies, and would fain make their condition more deplorable than it has been made by years of injustice and wrong. How desp'cable are the characters of the men who owe all they are or hope to be to the negro, and who now conspire against him because he dares assert his manhood by asking that the commonest rights of citizenship be accorded him. THE New York Republicans spoke in unmistakable terms yesterday, both in reference to principles and men. Senator Conkling, as their first choice for Presideat, received the emphatic indersement of three to one.

EDITORIAL POSTSORIPT. Senator Dawes, Congressmen Seelye, Frye

and others will soon start the campaign ball rolling in Consecticut. It may have been difficult to get a rhym for Conkling, but it was very easy for the Syracuse convention to harmoniously chim for Conkling. It is not the least strange that the Bourbon side of the House felt put out yesterday, whe they were taken in by Blaine on the election

The report that Caleb Marsh made money in the bribe-giving business is all a myth. He made every cent of it by selling grated turnips for horse-radish. The New York Tribune is going around asia

eering bill;

ing everybody to kick Hiester Clymer. If the Tribune were not so near-sighted, it would readily see that there is not enough of the man to kick with any respectability. If the fathers and mothers of Washington to not want their children to grow up Pendle tons and Robbins, they will see to it that when hey make a claim on their attention and affections it will be granted without "dock ing" too large a bonus. The Democratic Congressional Committee leister Clymer chairman, sends out a circular saying, "This committee is now fully organ-

Hampshire smiles, and says, "Well, that is all the good it will do you." When Hiester Clymer took up a morning paper vesterday and noticed the arrival of Marsh, he threw it nervously aside, and mutered: "Hang it! I told him so. Now if Le had cone to Europe, as I wanted him to, this would never have happened." The fact is settled beyond dispute that exremes in this age will not be tolerated. There are women in the Sandwich islands who dress only with a common cotten umbrella and one fracelet, and the missionaries are stirring up bigger rumpus about it than American so ciety is about Mrs. Belknap.

Bowles has been silent for three days, and now, amid sounds and clamors of investigation and rumor, we hear a voice crying in plaintive despair: "Bowles, Bowles, why ion't you nominate me for Minister to the Court of St. James?" And thus we find that Mr. Adams gives up in the Presidential race. for it is his voice that we hear.

The women of Wyoming think a great deal of the elective franchise, but it would seem that some of them are rather inclined to comnercial transactions with the ballot. A redheaded man who was running for town clerk succeeded, without exhaustive effort, in bribing eighteen of them with one pound of chewing gum divided into eighteen equal parts.

Judge Ried, of South Carolina, put a man schind the iron bars of a common jail for callng a lady friend "a duck-legged heifer." This eminds us that a man named Robbins, now in the National Legislature, on a time sold himelf for twenty dollars to a North Carolina solitician, and is still enjoying the boon of sersonal freedom. The comparison simply shows the difference in the administration of ustice existing in these two States.

A few days ago Mr. Blaine, in speaking o the impure air in the House, said: "I do not know what the truth may be, but certainly all gentlemen who have served in this House for many years will testify, I think, and agree that from some cause or other there never wa such a bad air in this Hall as there has been this winter." The truth of the whole matter will be readily understood when it is known that there is a combination formed, said to be composed of two Democratic Congressmen and others directly concerned, who are moving to secure the removal of the present vent lating apparatus for the purpose of replacing it by machinery in which they are personally
